Summary of Findings

The Ohio Council of Behavioral Health and Family Services Providers has surveyed members to gather data on school-based services and partnerships since 2017. In the past four years, the prevalence of providers in school-settings has increased significantly. In 2017, 36 community behavioral health provider organizations reported delivering school-based behavioral health services in more than 200 school districts and over 1,160 school buildings across Ohio. At the time that number represented approximately one-third of Ohio's school buildings. In our most recent survey, conducted in February 2021, 76 community behavioral health provider organizations reported delivering school-based services in 710 school districts, ESCs, alternative, private, and charter schools and over 2,800 school buildings across the state. In four years, the number of buildings receiving services more than doubled and community behavioral health provider organizations are now reaching approximately 73% of the schools in Ohio.

Growth in School-Based Services

Community behavioral health providers offered services to students in an additional 224 buildings across the state, representing a 9% increase from the previous year. This is despite disruptions and a myriad of school schedules resulting from the global pandemic. The continued growth is indication of the strong partnerships that community behavioral health organizations have developed with school districts over the past four years. 80% of community providers reported being involved in general planning activities with school partners and two-thirds are organizational members of the school district's planning team. These partnerships are in the best interest of the students, the community, and schools because they allow access to services that are not always available otherwise and extend beyond the traditional school day and school year.

The Importance of School-Community Provider Partnerships

The availability of behavioral health services in schools has continued to increase and will be a critical asset to support students as need and demand for mental health service is accelerating due to the impact of COVID-19. According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, one in five children and adolescents experience a mental health problem during their school years. Approximately 60% of students do not receive the treatment they need due to stigma and lack of access to services. Of those who do get help, nearly two thirds do so only in school. A recent report by FAIR Health found that mental health visits doubled between March and April 2020 compared to 2019 while medical appointment declined by 50% as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. Additionally, the same report found that for youth ages 13-18, anxiety disorders increased by 93.6% as a percentage of all medical claims in April 2020 compared to April 2019, major depression increased by 83.9%, and adjustment disorders increased by 89.7% Meeting the full continuum of needs for students is best achieved through partnerships with community-based providers who can build relationships with children and families in the school and offer additional support in the community once rapport is established. This model not only reduces gaps and potential redundancy in care, but also reduces confusion for families and offers support beyond school hours.

Behavioral Health Workforce Shortage

The shortage in the behavioral health workforce is a national issue limiting access to treatment across the country and in all settings amidst an opiate epidemic and during a time of unprecedented suicides. The global pandemic has only increased the demand for behavioral healthcare treatment. Additionally, the pandemic has impacted community providers school-staffing as schools were providing virtual learning or hybrid options for a significant portion of the last year. Of the 76 organizations who responded to the survey, 47 organizations reported a total of 234.25 FTEs needed to fully staff their school-based teams. Although school partnerships are extremely important and valuable, schools are also one of the top competitors in hiring behavioral health workforce. Based on survey responses, 43% of organizations reported schools as one of their top competitors for staff with salary and schedule being the top reasons school-based staff leave community-based behavioral health organizations. Separately, almost 40% of provider organizations reported schools directly recruited and hired staff from their organizations. More must be done to further explore workforce issues to respond to rising demand and needs for social-emotional supports and services needed in school and communities.

Student Wellness and Success Funds

Ohio has historically supported school-based behavioral health services, including through budget investments like the Student Wellness and Success funding. According to the December 2020 Ohio Department of Education Student Wellness and Success Fund Survey Data Report, school districts reported mental health services as the most popular use of these funds and 404 school districts reported partnering with community-based mental health providers. Based on provider report in our survey, there was a 55% increase in the number of organizations providing services in schools directly attributed to these funds. The Student Wellness and Success funding is an important investment to help the continued growth of behavioral health services in schools. Providing school-based behavioral health services has been shown to reduce barriers to accessing services and create safer school environments. Additionally, students are more likely to seek services voluntarily when services are available in school.

Recommendations

Ohio schools and community behavioral health providers have continued to increase the availability of behavioral health services in schools over the past four years. Continuing to build on the existing infrastructure through partnerships with community-based providers and expanding services in schools is the most effective way to provide prevention and treatment services to Ohio's youth. Given the increased demand for services caused by the pandemic, we must further expand school-based behavioral health services, leveraging school and community partnerships by:

- Providing a stable funding source specifically for prevention, consultation, early intervention, and treatment services in schools and timely referrals to community treatment services.
- Implementing the ODE Whole Child Framework to further expanding partnerships between schools and community behavioral health organizations to support social-emotional development, routinely offer prevention programming, provide mental health and addiction services, and increase coordination of care through regular communication between schools, families, and behavioral health providers.
- Investing in the community-behavioral health workforce by establishing funding for tuition reimbursement and/or loan forgiveness programs.
- Increasing school-based screening efforts to identify youth with mental health and substance abuse needs and provide them with the resources they need as required by Medicaid's Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnostic and Treatment (EPSDT) benefit, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).
- Targeting prevention programs to youth who have risk factors, such as ADHD, anxiety, and depression, and have a family history of mental illness or substance use disorders.
- Providing education to families, schools, and providers on federal insurance parity to support access to treatment services in schools for children with mental, emotional, and behavioral conditions.
